Be the Go-To for Business-Related Decisions

If you think accounting is just crunching numbers, you might be surprised to know that numbers are just part of the equation when it comes to an accountant's career. The rest involves informed decision-making, advising executives, working with people, and serving as an important team member in a successful business. A focus in accounting can lead you to upward growth, job security, and a rewarding career.

WHAT YOU CAN EXPECT

Prepare yourself for today's business world and gain practical experience as you build skills to answer challenging business questions. Along with the recognition that goes with a UNC degree, you'll gain and apply critical thinking and research skills that will make you a highly valued asset in top international, regional, and local accounting firms. MCB students in the accounting emphasis program are often recruited by top accounting firms such as PWC, ACM, MHP, Bradley, Deloitte, EKS&H, GHP, BKD, Eide Bailey, Anderson & Whitney, Western Union, JBS, and State Farm. More than 90 percent of MCB accounting graduates work in the accounting field after graduation or are attending graduate school. Most students even have jobs lined up months before graduation.

EARN A BACHELOR'S AND MASTER'S IN FIVE YEARS

In addition to your undergraduate accounting experience, you can easily transition to the MCB Master's of Accounting program, earning both a bachelor's and master's degree in just five years. By adding 30-credit hours and earning a Master's of Accounting degree, you'll open the door to a multitude of career options. Program completion will satisfy Colorado's and most other states' 150-hour requirement for licensing as a CPA and will help prepare you for success on the CPA exam.

“From my first day on campus, my experience at MCB has been more than I could have imagined. I cannot think of one teacher that doesn't have experience outside of the classroom, which is what I like most about MCB. The experiences and stories shared by professors make class more interesting and allow me to relate to what they are teaching. They tell you that they put their students first, and they have all followed through with that by going out of their way to make sure I succeed.”
